About Workshop:

The main objective behind organizing such workshop for the students is that, Students should be able to aware about What are Human Rights?, How is Indian Judiciary System is there?, and students should also aware about the Indian Constitution.

For the law Human rights law places an obligation on targets at the in a particular way and prohibits States from engaging in laws and specified activities. However, the law does not establish human rights. Human rights are inherent entitlements which come to every person as a consequence of being hurnan.. Treaties and other sources of law generally serve to protect duties are two formally the rights of individuals and groups against actions there is an abandonment of actions by Governments which interfere t to life to a with the enjoyment of their human rights.

The Constitution of India is the supreme law of India. It defines the Government's fundamental political policies, processes, powers, rights, and duties. It conveys constitutional supremacy & not parliamentary supremacy because it is not established by the Parliament but by a constituent assembly and adopted by its citizens. with a declaration in its preamble. The human rights and fundamental rights, such as equality, liberty of thought and expression, belief, movement, communication and association of Indians are protected by the Indian constitution.

Judiciary is an important branch of the government of India. It is an independent body and is different from Executive and legislature. Judiciary operates in such a way that it keeps both the executive and legislature in their mandated role. The main function of the Indian Judiciary System is to deliver justice to the people of India. The Constitution establishes single integrated and a Independent judicial system for the whole India. The Indian Judiciary is the Interpreter of the Constitution of India, Guardian of fundamental rights and freedoms of the people of India.
